

Oh, How I Itched!

What long nerve-racking days of constant torture—what sleepless nights of terrible agony—itch—itch—itch, constant itch, until it seemed that I must tear off my very skin—then—
Instant relief—my skin cooled, soothed and healed!
The very first drops of D.D.D. Prescription for Eczema stopped that awful itch instantly—yes, the very moment D.D.D. touched the burning skin the torture ceased. A 5c bottle proves it.
D.D.D. has been known for years as the only absolutely reliable remedy.

CONCERT PARTY GIVES PROGRAM

Ernest Gamble and Associates Please Phoenix People Last Evening—Next Number February 22.

The Ernest Gamble Concert Party entertained a large number of people in the Adams school auditorium last evening. This concert company appeared under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and rendered a program that is not surpassed by many touring organizations.

The next number on the Y. M. C. A. course will be given at the Elks opera house on Thursday evening, the 22nd. As yet, not very much has been said about this number, which is the LeBrun opera company, but without question Phoenix has never entertained a finer organization, for Madame LeBrun is one of the world's greatest soprano singers. She gained her reputation while singing with the Royal Italian Opera company in New York and the English Grand Opera company of London when it toured America, over a year ago she went to Germany, where she sang at the Wagner Festival performance at Bayreuth. She appeared in Carlsruhe as Leonora in "Il Trovatore," and as Marguerite in "Faust" at Nantes, France, also took part in a festival performance at Trieste.

Madame LeBrun has a reputation as a fine opera singer and sings in four languages. Her incomparable vocalism is so perfect that criticism fails. In its exquisite finish, its perfect enunciation, its wonderful pathos and truth of intonation, and its rarest melody of tonalities, Mme. LeBrun's singing is the most classic, the most beautiful and charming. The rest of the cast is a splendid support of Madame LeBrun. They are Miss Laura Baer, contralto; Mr. Fritz

Huttman, tenor and Mr. Arthur Deane, baritone.
Mr. Ernest Gamble himself, in his usual frank and unselfish manner, speaks in highest terms of Madame LeBrun and her company, saying that Phoenix has heard no finer artist than Madame LeBrun. The holders of course tickets will be allowed to select their choice of seats first, after which the house will be thrown open to the general public. The date of reservation and the price of seats will be given in tomorrow's paper.

But if you come to our store, we are so certain of what D.D.D. will do for you that we offer you a full size bottle on this guarantee—If you do not find that it takes away the itch AT ONCE, it costs you not a cent.

BRYAN IS THE STATE'S GUEST

Mr. Bryan is a young man, but his strength does not lie in the advocacy of a certain set of principles as a good many people suppose, and as he probably supposes himself. Those principles have been rejected time and again; and they will probably be rejected just as often as they are submitted for popular approval.

There are three things that have contributed to Mr. Bryan's success. One is the fact that as the youngest of all presidential candidates he forced the attention and eventually the support of all the party leaders; the second is his clean and prize-winning character; and the third is his pleasing mode of expression.

Mr. Bryan is certain to draw a large crowd when he speaks today. And his speech is sure to be a good one. Not that he will have anything to say that has not been said many times before—many times, in fact, before Mr. Bryan ever thought of it—but because he will dress his thoughts in a pleasing garb.

So, everybody will extend a welcome to Mr. Bryan. He is the guest of the new state of Arizona and the new state of Arizona is extremely glad of the privilege of entertaining him.

If you happen to wander down street along about ten or eleven o'clock today and see a rather tall man, with an intellectual face and a pleasant manner, surrounded probably by a group of "leading citizens" and a number of women insistently asking for his autograph, that can be just one person—Hon. William J. Bryan. For Bryan, as you will be informed elsewhere in this issue of The Republican—were informed in yesterday's issue in fact, will be here to help celebrate the admission of Arizona into the union.

Being a consistent reader of The Republican you are aware of course that this paper and Mr. Bryan happen to hold somewhat different views on a good many questions. The Republican is dead sure that it is right and Mr. Bryan is wrong; and Mr. Bryan is equally sure that he is right and The Republican is wrong. So, under the circumstances there is just one thing to do, and that is to forget all about it for the time being and show Mr. Bryan that we like and admire him anyhow.

For, really, it is a great pleasure to spending the winter in Winkelman and have Mr. Bryan here today, and there are some thousands of the people of Arizona extremely glad to welcome him. And The Republican is just as glad as anybody.

Mr. Bryan is, by a considerable majority, the largest figure in the ranks of democracy just now; and he has occupied that position for a good many years. The fact that he does occupy that position is not what counts; it is so because he has done so without the aid of any official office or patronage to help with the job.

Mr. Bryan really ought to live in Phoenix. Indeed, he is a good deal of a Phoenix himself. Three times he has risen from the ashes of crushing defeat, and somehow, those defeats never seem to have done him any considerable harm with the rank and file of his party.

Mr. Bryan is a young man, but his strength does not lie in the advocacy of a certain set of principles as a good many people suppose, and as he probably supposes himself. Those principles have been rejected time and again; and they will probably be rejected just as often as they are submitted for popular approval.

MORE TROUBLE FOR R. DALEY

As if a Bigamy Charge Was Not Trouble Enough for One Man, Hayden Officers Now Hold Him for Larceny.

HAYDEN, Feb. 13.—Thomas H. Denison has returned to Hayden after several days in Tempe on account of the illness and death of his child. Mr. Denison's Hayden friends are grieved to hear of his bereavement.

J. W. Braubenberg and family are spending the winter in Winkelman and account of the ill health of Mr. Braubenberg who is owner of the Winkelman fruit ranch in Aravapo Canyon about twenty-five miles from here.

Mr. and Mrs. Russel Page with their cousin, Miss Wilson of Los Angeles who is visiting in Winkelman were over from Winkelman Monday visiting their Hayden friends.

Ross Daley who has recently been hit by a lot of trouble in the Salt River Valley through bigamy charges brought against him and who was later brought to Hayden to answer a charge of larceny was given a preliminary hearing before Justice Adams Monday and bound over to the grand jury. It is charged that Daley stole a saddle here and shipped it to Mesa. The saddle in question was taken from the back of a horse which T. H. Dick of this place had ridden to Winkelman. The theft was accomplished when Mr. Dick left the animal for a few minutes.

Two Mexicans, Julio Martinez and Roberto Rodriguez had a little "cutting scene" in the Mexican quarter of town Monday night. Martinez was quite badly cut but it is thought that he will recover. Rodriguez, who did the cutting is still at large. It is not yet known just how the fight started.

WANTED.

A man—who is gentle and just;
A man who is upright and true to his trust;
Who cares more for honor and love than for self;
And who holds his neighbor as dear as himself.

Who's sober and earnest, and merry and gay;
Who cheerfully shoulders the cares of the day;
Whose principles are high, whose integrity's strong;
Who'd rather do right any time than do wrong.

—Anon.

Members of Phoenix Lodge No. 2 Knights of Pythias and visiting brothers together with members of Uniform Rank will meet at E. P. Hall today at 1 o'clock sharp to form for parade.

Music at the Ford Hotel tonight.

THE PATRON SAINT OF LOVERS

Is St. Valentine, to whom we all make obeisance some time during life. The youthful lover buys a beautiful creation of paper lace, flowers, and pretty rhymes to send to his sweetheart, because this seems to him the best manner in which to express his preference. Sometimes the married lover surprises his wife with a Valentine just to remind her of their courtship days when of Miller-Sterling.

Which Is Right?

Did you read the Franklin advertisement in last week's trade papers? Anyway we quote the main features of it.

Which Is Right--A Big, Heavy Automobile, or a Light-weight, Easy Riding One?

There is but one answer—yet a great many automobiles are heavy, expensive to own, and not very easy riding. Franklin automobiles are light weight and easy riding. Measured by duration of service and economy of operation they cost less than any other.

Franklin construction is scientific. It builds easy riding into the car itself. The laminated wood frame and full-elliptic spring suspension form a perfect shock-absorbing combination. There are no torque bars or strut rods to transmit vibration.

The Franklin is the car of small tire expense. Tires give service until they are worn out. There is a vast difference between wearing a tire out and having it blow out while it is still a good tire.
